MSBCA Annual General Meeting (AGM) and Election in September

Do not forget to think about running for a MSBCA board seat at our upcoming AGM in September. Feel free to contact me at president@msbca.ca if you have any questions regarding the board work effort. Alternatively, you can email me your phone number and I will call you back. I will be honest and say that there are some challenges on the board, but they are good issues to have because they are signs that MSBCA is growing and maturing. Hence, to shape the future of MSBCA, I highly encourage those of you whom have never been on this board to run. I will be around as past president, along with many others, to provide you guidance and support.

*Have a great summer, Yahoo!!!

I just came back from New Zealand a couple weeks ago and I had a really good time! I would have loved to see more of the place because it is so beautiful there. I was there for 9 days. My friends and I arrived in Christchurch and stayed there for a night. Then in the morning, we rented a car to make our drive down to Queenstown. We did drive close to the town centre where the disaster struck and there wasn't much of a town centre left. We didn't spend much time in Christchurch and apparently they are still feeling some shakes every now and again.

We drove for a few hours and got to a place called Hokitika for a restroom break and a drink. Then we drove to Franz Josef to stay there a couple of nights. While in Franz Josef we did a half-day glacier walk, which was really cool. My friend, Kristy who did the walk same time last year, didn't go on the walk this time, I saw her photos and the glacier has changed so much within a year! Our guide, on the walk, told us that New Zealand has over 3000 glaciers!

After another night in Franz Josef, we were on the road again to Wanaka. Such a pretty place, it reminded me of Banff a little bit, with the small town and the shops with the mountains as a backdrop. There wasn't any snow yet, we were told that the snow was late coming and the ski resorts were meant to open 2 weeks ago, so everyone has just been waiting for the snow to come. We had a late lunch there and we were planning to stay there one night and then drive to Queenstown the next day, but at the last moment we decided to make the 2-hour drive to Queenstown then and stay there an extra night.

It was good because then we had an extra day in Queenstown to do whatever we wanted. We checked out a couple wineries about 15-20 minutes outside of Queenstown. Then we had to return the car and check into our hotel at the Novotel. We booked a Milford Sound trip for the next day.

Milford Sound was a whole day trip, leaving at 7:30am and getting back at about 8:00pm. The drive took about 5 hours each way and then we had a 2-hour ferry ride through Milford Sound. It was really cloudy, cold and rainy that day so it was a bit tough to see the beautiful landscapes and waterfalls, but looking back on it now, it was still a really beautiful place to see despite the weather.

The next 2 days we went skiing/snowboarding. There wasn't much snow in Queenstown when we first got there but the forecast said that snow was coming the Thursday and would be snowing throughout the weekend. So, lucky us, in our last few days that we were there we got snow! However, the conditions on the slopes weren't the best to be skiing in. It was really windy and snowy, and some of the lifts had to be shut down because of the wind. We went to The Remarkables one day and Coronet Peak the next. I think I like Coronet Peak better but there was only one lift open that day which is a shame.

The nightlife in Queenstown is really fun too. There are so many places to check out like restaurants, pubs, bars and clubs. There are all these alleyways and anywhere you go there is a cool place to check out! We got to try the famous Fergburger, well known for their delicious burrgrers and the lived up to it! So yummy!

On our last day in Queenstown, we woke up to snow in the town so it was a real treat for my Aussie friends to see that. So our trip comes to an end and we fly from Queenstown back to Christchurch, stay another night there and then fly out of Christchurch back to Sydney. I would really love to go back in their summer and maybe check out the north island next time. I heard it's more picturesque up there. Well I have another 2 weeks of down time and then I will be off again on a road trip up to Queensland, visiting the Whitsundays and Airlie Beach, and some of the Great Barrier Reef!
